Canada Initiates Administrative Review of its Antidumping Duty on Certain Whole Potatoes from the United States

On October 31, 2025, the Canada Border Services (CBSA) initiated an administrative review of its antidumping measure on imports of certain whole potatoes originating in or exported from the United States. Canada’s AD measure on certain whole potatoes has been in place since June 4, 1984. The AD duties currently in place for U.S. producers/exporters range from 0.30% to 67.68%.

What is an administrative review?

The purpose of an administrative review is to reevaluate the dumping margins for interested parties subject to the AD measure. The dumping margins established during the review will be effective for the subject goods on or after the date of the conclusion of the administrative review.

How can I participate?

U.S. companies involved in the production, sale, or distribution of the subject goods can register as interested parties if they wish to participate in the review. Registration is the first step in protecting your rights in a foreign trade remedy proceeding. Doing so allows you to access case records and submit information and comments, ensuring that your views are considered. To register as an interested party, please follow the instructions listed for Canada’s ACE website application (Anti-dumping and countervailing e-filing web application user guide).
