PAST PERFORMANCE

United States Army Medical Material Agency (2012-present)

Western Shelter has been contracted by the US Army Medical Materials Agency to manufacture a series of field hospitals for foreign military sales to Lebanon, Lithuania, Uganda, and Rwanda. For each of these hospitals Western Shelter provided specially modified shipping containers, soft-sided shelters, water handling systems, power distribution equipment, and all of the medical goods necessary for initial hospital operation.

Army Corp of Engineers (2017)

After Hurricanes Irma and Maria hit the US Virgin Islands in 2017 The Army Corp of Engineers contacted Western Shelter to provide two field hospitals to restore medical services in the territory. This project required Western Shelter to manufacture, ship, and install the two hospitals on site in an extremely expedited 12-week timeframe.

United States Air Force (2017)

Western Shelter worked to supply turnkey camps to three Air Force squadrons to be used as forward operating bases during downed pilot recovery missions.

Defense Logistics Agency (2016-present)

Western Shelter has won numerous contracts with the DLA to manufacture cable assemblies for applications ranging from expeditionary camps, to replacement parts for the aerospace industry.

Defense Logistics Agency (2017-2018)

Western Shelter was selected by the DLA to provide a vehicle maintenance kit that included several difficult to source components.

Federal Emergency Management Agency (1992-present)

FEMA Search and Rescue Teams have standardized their response caches around the Gatekeeper Shelter. These shelters have been deployed in response to every major disaster in the United States in the last 25 years.

Department of Justice (2015)

In 2015 a 7.8 magnitude earthquake hit Nepal, the US DOJ contacted Western Shelter to provide temporary police stations after more than 100 were destroyed. This project required a six-week turnaround.

Veterans Affairs (2012-present)

Western Shelter has worked with VA facilities across the United States to supply them with temporary medical clinics for disaster response and hospital surge capacity. Several of these clinics were deployed to Puerto Rico to restore medical services to veterans after Hurricane Maria devastated existing facilities.

United States Forest Service (1990-present)

The Forest Service has been a long time user of Western Shelters for their wildfire suppression operations.

National Disaster Medical System (1992-present)

Western Shelters have been the choice of NDMS for national emergency response including natural disasters, acts of terrorism, and pre-planned national security events.
